Drilling for rock

State begins core drilling

The Kentucky Department of Highways started core drilling Tuesday on the closed section of KY 52 East, and county government is requesting state help to improve Primrose Lane.

The core drilling is the first step needed to find the depth of rock. That is necessary if a bridge is built on the spot that started caving in almost two weeks ago. The road has been closed to through traffic since then.

Transportation Cabinet Spokesperson H. B. Elkins in Jackson said Monday that the state is looking possibly filling the area with rock temporarily so traffic can continue. However, that would have to be taken out once work is begun on a permanent fix. Possible fixes are a bridge or a culvert.

With the road closed, traffic is unofficially being rerouted over the county road, Primrose Lane.

Lee County Sheriff Wendell "Bug" Childers said on Tuesday that his department has worked four minor accidents on the narrow road. Three, he said, concerned side-view mirrors being knocked off. Another, which occurred on Monday, involved a vehicle and a farm tractor. No injuries have been reported.

County Judge/Executive Steve Mays sent a letter to the state Transportation Cabinet last Thursday asking for funding for repairs and repaving of Primrose Lane.

In his letter, Mays said, "It is estimated that over two thousand vehicles use this state route (KY 52 East) daily and several of those vehicles are Fleet trucks. The state is using county road Primrose Lane as a detour for these vehicles, until the state route can be opened back up when the repairs are completed.

"Primrose Lane is in need of repairs to be equipped to handle this type of heavy traffic. Some of the repairs that Primrose will need is widening, shouldering, and paving. My concern is that if these repairs are not taken care of in an effective and timely manner then this poses a threat to local and rerouted traffic."

The county fiscal court last Thursday agreed to fashion an ordinance that would reduce speed on Primrose Lane at 25 miles per hour and not allow large trucks.

Beating case sent to Grand Jury

Jesse P. Thacker, accused of beating an elderly man February 27, has had his case sent to the Lee County Grand Jury.

Probable cause was found in Lee District Court last week to send the case to the grand jury. The charge is assault in the first degree.

Lee County Deputy Sheriff Matt Eversole was dispatched to Thacker's KY 52 West home that morning. When he arrived, he found that 73-year-old LeRoy Shuler had suffered injuries to the left side of his head. He was transported to the University of Kentucky for treatment.

Thacker, 33, said at the time that Shuler had attacked Thacker's wife and daughter with a vacuum cleaner, and that Thacker then tried to restrain him. With Shuler continuing to resist, according to Thacker, he then struck Shuler with some object.

Two charged with robbery

Two Wolfe County men were arrested last Wednesday after they allegedly robbed the Campton Apple Market.

John Dean Trent and Dallas C. Trent, both of Lacy Creek in Wolfe County were charged with robbery in the first degree and lodged in the Three Forks Regional Jail.

According to information supplied by Allen Booth, surveillance cameras and the work of the Wolfe County Sheriff's Office and the Kentucky State Police led to the quick apprehension of the two.

They were scheduled for arraignment yesterday, Wednesday.

The Kentucky Transportation Cabinet started core drilling Tuesday to find the rock base at the site of the road break at St. Helens.

Vehicles are forced off narrow Primrose Lane when they meet as these ruts show. Several minor accidents have already occurred.

Southside recognized State lauds efforts

Southside Elementary School has been recognized by the state for its academic performance.

In a March 5 letter to School Principal Steven Carroll, Kentucky Education Commissioner Terry Holliday and Kentucky Board of Education Chair Roger Marcum congratulated Carroll "...on your school's designation as a 2013-14 High-Performing School under the Unbridled Learning Assessment and Accountability System.

"This designation indicates that Southside Elementary School is among the elementary schools with overall scores at the 90th percentile or higher. Your school's score of 77.1 is at the 94th percentile, and is an indication that the efforts of teachers, administrators, student and parent are paying off."

Included with the letter was a banner to be displayed in the school.

County tries to save Primrose Lane

The Lee County Fiscal Court last Thursday agreed to fashion an ordinance that would set a 25 mile per hour speed limit on Primrose Lane, and that would also prohibit large trucks from using the narrow road.

The court's decision is the result of the closure of part of KY 52 East at St. Helens due to a section crumbling away after severe weather. Traffic to and from points east of Beattyville have been using Primrose Lane as the shortest detour available.

Judge/Executive Steve Mays told the magistrates during the court's regular monthly meeting that the state had told him KY 52 East could be closed up to four months.

Something, he said, would have to be done for the county road, Primrose Lane.

County Attorney Tom Hollon suggested the speed limit and prohibition of large trucks.

The state has established signage sending traffic between Breathitt and Lee counties to Boonville.

Another county road, Evelyn Road in the western part of the county, has been closed because of a slip caused by bad weather. Mays said that contractor Gary King had been working on the slip, and hoped to have the road open by this past Monday.

And yet another road, Mill Branch School Road, also suffered severe damage.

Emergency Management Administrator Eugene Barrett asked the magistrates to get estimates of damage in their districts to him so he could turn them into the state.

"This has been one of the roughest periods we've ever had," Mays said of the heavy snow, cold temperatures and rain in recent weeks.

Mays thanked county workers, the Rescue Squad, fire departments and others for all they did during the bad weather.

Citizen Sandy Spicer asked who made the call to bring the National Guard in during the weather emergency.

Mays' secretary, Pam Stepp, said a letter from the judge/executive's office had to be sent.

Citizen Phyllis McCord asked who sent the Guard away.

Road Foreman Ferrell Wise said they could only spend three days in any one county. He said they got in Lee County late in the afternoon their first day, and their road clearing equipment was frozen the second day. On the third day, Wise said that one Guardsman and one citizen were injured.

On another matter, County Finance Officer Pearl Spencer reported that the county received $265,050 from an auction of two Mack trucks. The county had originally paid $259,490 for the trucks.

A loan of $271,854 from Peoples Exchange Bank was approved for obtaining two new trucks. The loan is at two percent with a $50 processing fee.

The court approved the second reading of amendments to the administrative code regarding fringe benefits, per diem and employee benefits.

Approval was given to the principal payment of $100,000 on the Health Department loan with the remaining balance refinanced for 12 months. This is for the purchase of the former Peoples Exchange Bank building downtown.

Approval was also given to use $75,000 in state funds to reimburse the debt service on the Health Department loan.

A related Coal Severance line item for the project was also approved.

Johnny Thorpe received a pay increase to $9 an hour.

County Treasurer Jodi Coldiron reported the following bank balances as of February 28: General Fund - $747,662; Road Fund - $93,096; Jail Fund - $17,666; LGEA - $191,683; Ambulance Fund - $65,416; and Solid Waste Fund - $50,362.

LEGISLATIVE UPDATE

By State Representative Cluster Howard

Only two legislative days remain in the 2015 Regular Session of the Kentucky General Assembly, and the fate of several major pieces of legislation—including the House Majority’s efforts to shore up the Kentucky Teachers Retirement System (KTRS) and reduce heroin addiction—now rest in the fate of conference committees.

Conference committees are made up of members appointed from both the House and Senate, and will hopefully complete their work over the 10-day recess period. Their charge is to reconcile differences between the two chambers on critical legislation before we return March 23 and 24 to make final votes. If an agreement is reached, both chambers will consider committee reports for final adoption.

Through House Bill 4, we are seeking to take advantage of historically-low interest rates to purchase bonds that would be invested in KTRS. This plan will help ensure the viability of teacher pensions for years to come. The Senate, unfortunately, chose to strip all funding from our bill and insert language to only study the problem instead of moving forward and addressing it. With the Federal Reserve System discussing the possibility of raising interest rates toward the end of the year, failing to act now could cause us to miss the window of opportunity on these low rates. We wait now to see if we can convince those opposed to our measure to act now in the best interest of Kentucky’s teachers and retirees.

We also achieved something fairly extraordinary in the House this week when key elements of a House Majority proposal to tackle the deadly scourge of heroin addiction received a unanimous, bipartisan vote. Too often, that’s a rarity in Frankfort, but it’s apparent my House colleagues in both political parties recognize that waiting any longer to address this growing issue will cost more and more lives.

Twice now this session, the House has sent a comprehensive, anti-heroin bill to the Senate leadership. Both bills have generated widespread public support, and twice, they’ve refused to concur with our efforts. The latest measure was approved in the final hours of our last legislative day before our 10-day recess period, so there’s time for it to be taken up by the Senate. It included compromises the House made to address some of the Senate’s key concerns on topics like access to the life-saving drug naloxone and the way increased penalties for drug traffickers would work. It also provided an additional $10 million phasing in the increased funding for treatment. That money could be put to work as early as July 1.

The House plan also includes a needle exchange program similar to the ones adopted by five states surrounding Kentucky. These programs have been proven to reduce the risk of infectious disease like Hepatitis C that drive up Kentucky’s health care costs. I was skeptical about this proposal when we began our talks. I don’t like the idea of encouraging addiction or giving “free needles” to drug addicts. However, when I learned that our police and highway workers were routinely encountering these dangerous objects, and saw needle exchanges in other states cut those numbers down significantly, I began to change my mind. Further, when I found through research that those who live in places with these exchanges are five times more likely to seek treatment, I took pause. Studies show these efforts are intervention points. Needle exchanges get these dangerous drug and disease-riddled objects away from our playgrounds, our public workers and our law enforcement officers. They also allow us to intervene with users and get them on the road to treatment. Studies show these exchanges work.

It’s important to note that the needle exchange is a local option, not a state mandate. If our community doesn’t want to begin a needle exchange, we don’t have to enact one. Both the local health board and our fiscal court would have to vote to create such an exchange.

The Kentucky Catholic Conference and Texas-based group “Right on Crime” have endorsed parts of our heroin effort. These include our “Good Samaritan” clause which grants immunity to those who seek emergency aid for individuals experiencing a heroin overdose. Far too many Kentucky families and communities are struggling with heroin addiction, and I am still cautiously optimistic the Senate conferees will adopt these important provisions.

We’re also working to convince the Senate that some $29 million in excess funds achieved through a 2013 Tobacco Master Settlement Agreement is used specifically for Kentucky farm families rather than being diverted to the state’s general fund. Our plan calls for the funds to be used for state agricultural programs, including on-farm and rural community water management initiatives, soil and water cost share programs, and other development projects. Our initiative is currently in the hands of Senate leadership and we are hopeful our ideas will prevail. Additionally, we’re nearing an agreement on legislation that would expand the use of ignition interlocks for people caught driving under the influence of alcohol. The measure would supplement hardship licenses – special licenses allowing people with suspended licenses to drive to work, school and doctor’s appointments – with ignition interlocks, a device about the size of a mobile phone that is wired into the ignition system of a vehicle. After their second DUI, a person convicted of drunk driving would have to blow into the device with no alcohol on their breath in order to start their vehicle. In the 24 states that have adopted the interlock program, deaths caused by drunken drivers have been reduced by 30 percent. According to Mothers Against Drunk Driving (MADD), there were 167 drunk driving deaths in Kentucky in the recent year. That’s 50 lives that could have been saved in one year had these provisions been in place.

As we await decisions on these issues, I can report the favorable passage of legislation that will include newborn screenings for Krabbe disease, a rare and often fatal degenerative disorder that affects the nervous system. Such tests would help identify methods for medical intervention, and the bill awaits the governor’s signature. Also, Gov. Beshear is expected to sign HB 429, which will create an advisory council to ensure working parents and other caregivers have safe, dependable options for childcare.

There are many other legislative measures I’ll be discussing in the weeks ahead, and I hope you will call or email me with any questions or concerns that you may have. You can leave me a message by calling 1-800-372-7181 or email me at cluster.howard@lrc.ky.gov.

Go ahead, take closed government personally

By Brian J. Hunhoff
Opinion Writer
Yankton County Observer

Don’t take it personally? That’s usually good advice, but today we urge the opposite reaction to all government bodies operating in the shadows, purposely avoiding public scrutiny and genuine transparency.

In other words, take closed government personally. Please!

1.Take it personally when a reporter is kicked out of a city council meeting so members can hold an illegal or unnecessary executive session.

1.Take it personally when public access to government records is refused, limited, or attached to excessive fees.

1.Take it personally when a judge jails a reporter for refusing to reveal a confidential source.

1.Take it personally when government fails to limit political contributions, and ignores ties of mutual benefit between private business and elected officials.

1.Take it personally when a governor issues secretive pardons.

1.Take it personally when a presidential administration works vigorously to identify and criminally prosecute government whistle-blowers.

Take all of this personally because it directly affects the quality and scope of government information you get from the press.

Wouldn’t it be great if more people understood a reporter’s exclusion from a meeting also excludes them, the general public, from learning details that are being hidden?

Wouldn’t it be great if everyone embraced the notion that government openness is an essential pillar of democracy?

Wouldn’t it be great if more people remembered the press serves as their eyes and ears in the halls of government?

Wouldn’t it be great if more people became aware that jailing journalists not only intimidates the press, but also chills the public’s right to know?

Wouldn’t it be great to see thousands of citizens press Congress to pass a federal shield law protecting reporters from being locked up for doing their job?

We love that scene in “Return of the King” when a resurgent monarch inspires his small army to stand against overwhelming odds by delivering a stirring cry to arms.

Wouldn’t it be great to see people everywhere show that kind of passion and unity in the fight for freedom of information and the battle against government secrecy? With apologies to J.R.R. Tolkien, that speech might go something like this:

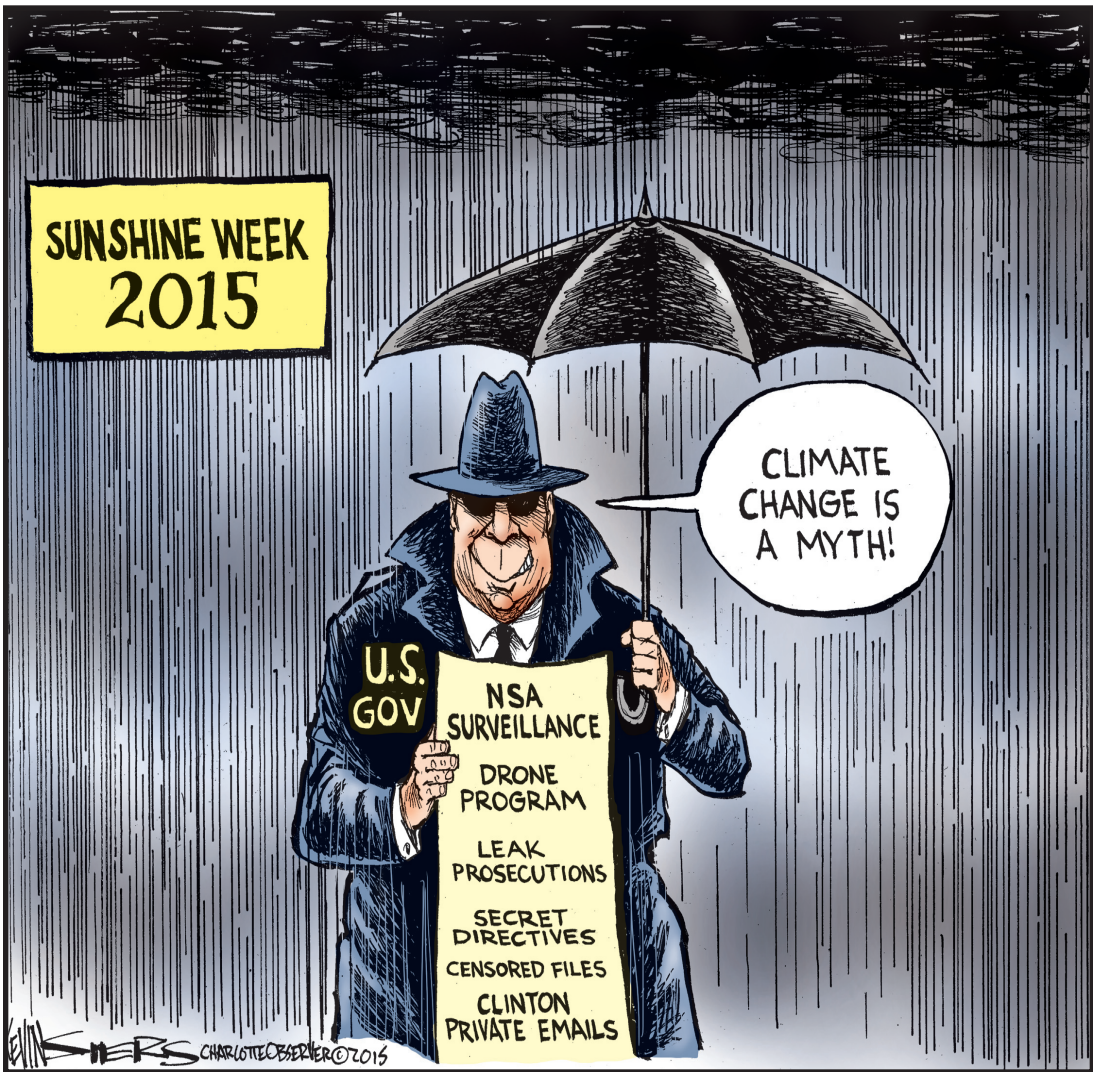

“A day may come when the courage of men fails and our freedoms die; when speech and religion are governed; when we forsake our reporters and break all bonds of fellowship with the Fourth Estate ... but it is not this day!

“There may come an hour of darkness, wolves and shattered shields that bring our First Amendment crashing down ... but it is not this day!

“On this day, we battle for our Bill of Rights! This day, we join with journalists in the war against government secrecy, corruption, and waste.

“This day, the press and public stand ... together! This day, we fight ... together!”

Wouldn’t that be great?

RESTITUTION

By Billy Davis

Restitution is definitely a Bible doctrine. It is clearly put forth in the account of the tax collector Zacchaeus. Zachaeus was saying to Jesus, “See Lord, the half full my goods I (now) give [by way of restoration] to the poor, and if I have cheated any one out of anything, I (now) restore four times as much.” Luke 19:8.

Also in the Old Testament, “If a man shall steal an ox, or a sheep, and kill it, he shall restore five oxen for an ox, and four sheep for a sheep.” Ex. 22:1.

I remember as a young person I would take nothing that belonged to me. Because I knew that I was ever to be right. I was have to make it right.

The dictionary gives the definition for restitution: “restoring something or replacing someone.”

I guess you could say this covers a large field – “restoring something” whatever ight be – is restoring – restoration.

To make the term exhaustive we must include every thing that needs restoring.

I love this scripture for it shows us that God is an example to us – God says, “And I will restore to you the years that the locust hath eaten...” Joel 2:25.

God is restoring their losses. God is good – God is good all the time.

A different view

By Betty Crabtree

Did you see on the T. V. the woman who had her dog dressed up in a dress, a crown and jewels around the dog’s neck? She has willed $100,000 to take care of her dog in the manner to which it has become accustomed. The dog has closets of dresses, is wheeled around in a baby buggy, and on an on I could go. I was appalled, especially when you think of the suffering, hunger, homelessness and abuse in the world today. Now, I like dogs and cats, and I do know we can become so attached to our pets that they become dear to us, BUT, they’re dogs and cats!

Seeing this I was reminded of Colossians 3:5 in the King James Version that mentions inordinate affections. What is inordinate? It is defined as (in this verse) excess or want of moderation; not limited to usual bounds; as an inordinate love of the world.

Colossians is called “The Epistle of Paul the Apostle to the Colossian Church.”

He begins in Chapter 1:2 and by saying, “To the saints and believing and faithful brethren in Christ.” Verse 3, “For we have heard of your faith in Christ Jesus and of the love which you have and show for all saints.”

Chapter 2:13, “And you being dead in your trespasses and the uncircumcision of your flesh, He has made alive together with Him, having forgiven you all trespasses.” Verse 14, “Having wiped out the certificate of debt with its requirements that was against us which was contrary to us. And He has taken it out of the way, having nailed it to the cross.”

Then in Chapter 3:1-3 Paul addresses the life-changing power of the Gospel saying, “If then you were raised with Christ seek those things which are above, where Christ is, sitting at the right hand of God.” Verse 2, “Set your mind on things above, not on things on the earth.” He then goes on to say in Verse 5 (KJV), “Mortify (put to death) therefore your members which are upon the earth; fornication, uncleanness inordinate affections, evil concupiscence (lust, the coveting of carnal things) covetousness, which is idolatry.”

He then goes on to describe the character of the New Man in verses 12 – 17.

And let me close this out with Verse 17 that says, “And whatever you do in word or deed, do all in the name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to God the Father through Him.”

(Keep you thoughts and affections simple, affections not over the top.)

That is what the Southside Academic Team was doing bright and early on Saturday, February 28, 2015. When we loaded the bus we were nervous and full of anxiety. At 7:30 a.m. we were off to Rogers Elementary School in Wolfe County to compete in the District Governors Cup. It was a long day since it was almost twelve hours before we returned to Lee County. But who was counting the hours? The time seemed as if it were standing still as we were anxiously waiting to see if we would hear our names being called out for awards. Yes we did! It was a win-win. (We were on a winning streak!) Southside Elementary won first place overall and we also got another very important award. Voted by the other schools, Southside won the Katherine C Hume Sportsmanship Award. This was a hip-hip-hooray day! We were honored in a very special way.

I, along with my other teammates, would like to thank our academic coaches,

Mrs. Jewell and Ms. Napier, for having faith in us. We all love you both. As the old saying goes: early to bed, early to rise, will make you healthy, wealthy and wise! I don't know about healthy and wealthy but it must have made us wise!

The Quick Recall Team came back from the loser's bracket to win first place. The Quick Recall Team includes: Nick Charles, Connor Deaton, Landon Foister, Isaiah Fultz, Aaron Mays, Christian Bowling, Hannah Barrett, Charlie Lyons and Bailee Wright.

Eye to Eye

with David Blandford, M.D.

A CLOUDED FORECAST

When you experience a gradual blurring or dimming of vision, you may have the earliest symptoms of a cataract. You may also see "halos" around lights. A cataract is any clouding or opacity in the normally transparent eye lens. Most cataracts develop as part of the aging process as the chemical composition of the lens changes. Studies have also shown that prolonged exposure to sunlight over many years (particularly the ultraviolet-B rays) can hasten the development of cataracts. Cataracts can occur at any age and may be due to an eye injury, certain eye diseases, medical conditions (such as diabetes), heredity, birth defects, some medications (such as steroids), excessive alcohol consumption, and smoking.

Once removed, cataracts will not grow back. At KENTUCKY EYE INSTITUTE, we recommend frequent eye examinations and tests which are critical for monitoring your eyes for any changes and may help prevent unnecessary vision loss. If you have questions regarding cataracts, or any other eye health concerns please call us at 606-666-9393 to schedule an appointment. We're located at 540 Jett Drive. We specialize in "EYE CARE FOR ALL AGES."

P.S. In the early stages of a cataract, stronger lighting and eyeglasses can help with blurred vision. When impaired vision interferes with your usual activities, safe and effective cataract surgery is the best answer.

Alert test this week

The U.S. Department of Homeland Security's Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA), in coordination with state and tribal emergency managers and state broadcasting associations, planned to conduct a test of the Emergency Alert System (EAS) on Wednesday, March 18, 2015 in Kentucky, Michigan, Ohio, and Tennessee. The test will begin at 2:30 p.m. Eastern Daylight Time (EDT) and will last approximately one minute.

"The goal of the test is to assess the operational readiness and effectiveness of the EAS to deliver a national emergency test message to radio, television and cable providers who broadcast lifesaving alerts and emergency information to the public," said Damon Penn, Assistant Administrator of FEMA's National Continuity Programs. "The only way to demonstrate the resilience of the system's infrastructure is through comprehensive testing to ensure that members of tribes, and the residents of Kentucky, Michigan, Ohio, and Tennessee, receive alerts when an emergency occurs."

The test was to be seen and heard over radio and television in Kentucky, Michigan, Ohio, and Tennessee, similar to regular monthly testing of the EAS conducted by state officials and broadcasters. The test message was to be nearly identical to the regular monthly tests of the EAS normally heard by public. Only the word "national" will be added to the test message: "This is a national test of the Emergency Alert System. This is only a test..."

The test is designed to have limited impact on the public, with only minor disruptions of radio and television programs that normally occur when broadcasters regularly test EAS in their area. Broadcasters and cable operators' participation in the test is completely voluntary. There is no Federal Communications Commission regulatory liability for stations that choose not to participate.

In 2007, FEMA began modernizing the nation's public alert and warning system by integrating new technologies into existing alert systems. The new system is known to broadcasters and local alerting officials as the Integrated Public Alert and Warning System or IPAWS. IPAWS connects public safety officials, such as emergency managers, police and fire departments, to multiple communications channels to send alerts to warn when a disaster happens. Spotlight on seniors

Submitted by Katie Coburn

Glenda came to Lee County Care & Rehab from Campton, Kentucky where she resided. She was born July 1936 to Lester and Ruth Miller. She recalls very fond memories of her childhood growing up with 2 sisters and 1 brother. A favorite childhood memory was of riding horses through the countryside with her siblings. She sings her parents praises for the great childhood she experienced. "They were great parents. We had rules but they always allowed us to be kids and enjoy life while teaching us along the way".

After high school, Glenda attended the University of Dayton where she received her Master's in Education. She began teaching immediately following her graduation. She taught in Ohio and Kentucky. One day while riding the train, she learned of an opportunity of teaching overseas on a military base. In the years to come she found herself teaching in Japan, France and Germany. She passionately reflects about her experiences in these countries and how sad she was when President DeGaulle of France forced American teachers out of the country. She returned to America to continue teaching. "I'm so glad I chose this profession because I just love children and love seeing them learn".

Glenda daily enjoys participating in Activities here at Lee Co. Care and Rehab and finds opportunities to continue 'teaching' the staff and residents throughout the day.

Know The Full Story

Stock market can be a scary place. If you're either an expert or you know very little about it, among those who don't know the stock market, read on for more information.

What is the stock market? The stock market is a place where stocks are bought and sold. There are three exchange markets: the New York Stock Exchange, the National Association of Securities Dealers Automated Quotations and the American Stock Exchange. The exchanges have different listing requirements for each company in relation to its size, profits and number of employees that allow it to have its stock traded on that particular exchange.

How does the stock market work? Stockbrokers are responsible for the actual trades. It is their job to get dealers and investors together. When a dealer hears of a sell order with a good price, they buy it through their agent and place the stock into their inventory. Brokers then sell stocks for investors from their inventories to investors.

What determines the price of stocks? Demand determines the prices. Stock prices go up when a company's profits rise or investors think its profits will increase. Stock prices fall when a company's profits decrease or investors think its profits will decrease. There are different types of stock prices. After trading begins, the first price paid is the opening price. After the market closes, the last price paid is the closing price. The price a buyer pays for a stock is the bid price; the price a seller receives is the asking price. The difference between the bid and asking price is called the bid-ask spread.

What is the best way to invest in the stock market? To make money in the stock market, experts advise individuals to invest for the long term. Past performance and future potential are chosen. A company that has performed well in the past has a better chance of performing well in the future and vice versa. Dollar cost averaging is the same amount monthly regardless of the stock price.
